Cure Your Cough With a Pleasant Remedy

Why take a nauseous dose of mixture to cure your cough when there isn't any need of it? It is not necessary to take a medicine that gives and nauseates when you can get the well-known family cough remedy.

POTNAM'S CHERRY COUGH COMFORT

This medicine is pleasant to take, cures all coughs that are curable, and is safe and pleasant to take. It is the most popular remedy we have ever sold. Customers tell us every day what a good cough cure it is, therefore we feel certain of making no mistake in recommending it. We are conservative druggists and do not recommend everything that comes along. When we tell you a medicine is right depend on this statement. It is always backed up with our "money back" argument. You never take any chances.

SOCIETY

The Princess Emma Defries gave a luau and an exhibition of ancestral kahilis yesterday, at which a considerable number of her friends, ladies and gentlemen of both races, were present. Old men, retainers of the family, wearing high silk hats and carrying spears, stood at the doorways and in the room where the kahilis were shown. The trophies were very beautiful and the exhibition room was adorned with satin capes made to represent the yellow feather cloaks anciently worn by Hawaiian royalty. The feast was laid in the spacious basement of the Defries homestead and was very abundant, and appetizing, the roast pig being fat and done to a turn, the fish being all that the fame of a Hawaiian luau has led gourmards to expect and the rest of the delicacies also being those which are usual at the princely tables of the native race. There were liquors of the taste, from soda water up the scale of beverages to some choice brands of that which cheers. The Princess Emma served and the Princess Theresa helped entertain. The latter had, since her bereavement, been somewhat out of society, and at the luau she was welcomed back with the social honors due her rank. The presence of the two royal ladies was the occasion of a flutter among some tourist guests who, not having experience with people who have occupied the steps of a throne, were at a loss how to take them. But the unfailing friendliness and tact of the two Princesses, especially the urbane and stately hostess, put them at their ease. The guests began to gather about three o'clock and the luau was served at a quarter past five. There was music by a Hawaiian orchestra and an aged native chanted mele and hulas, also—following the ancient custom—the genealogy of the Princess who received her friends with so fine and gracious a hospitality.

Little Marcus Monsarratt was the host on Wednesday afternoon at a party for nearly a hundred of his young friends. The entertainment was given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Halstead, Wilder avenue. Owing to the inclement weather the party was given indoors where games were the vogue during the afternoon. Little tables were set in the dining room and the feast comprised all the dainties that young folk covet. The place cards were heart-shaped and were adorned with figures of Hooligans, Katzenjammer kids and others of the comic supplement family.

Mrs. J. F. Humburg entertained at dinner on Friday evening.

Among the recent acquisitions to musical circles is Miss Terry, daughter of Admiral Terry, whose charming voice has been heard so far by but few of her friends.

Next Saturday evening at Punahou College a number of ambitious young amateur Thespians will present two plays, "My Uncle's Will," and "An Ugly Customer."

A movement is afoot among the society folk of Punahou and Manoa to definitely set aside days for receiving which will not conflict, and it has been proposed by several Punahou ladies that Punahou receive the first and third Mondays and Manoa and College Hills the second and fourth Mondays.

Mr. E. D. Tenney celebrated his birthday anniversary on Tuesday evening with a dinner to twenty-four of his friends, mostly married. It was a royal dinner, the guests sitting at a circular table which was beautifully decorated in red. The cards were large-sized champagne bottles decorated with leis. A rhyme befitting the dinner was given to each person, some of them were exceedingly clever, and the sallies of wit were keenly relished, for all were read aloud. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. V. Forster, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dowsett, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivers, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Benson, Mr. and Mrs. E. ## Ancient Jewels.

Some of the most remarkable Egyptian jewelry ever discovered has recently been unearthed. The date assigned is as remote as 5000 B. C., but the workmanship in gold and jewels is marvelous. In exploring the tomb of King Zer it was found that the tomb had been entered for robbery at some remote period and that the plunderers had broken off the arm of the mummy queen and hidden it in a crevice in the wall—perhaps on being discovered or alarmed—and had never returned to remove it.

On taking off the wrappings Professor Petrie found four magnificent bracelets of gold, with amethyst, turquoise and lapis lazuli in varied and elegant adjustments. The gold work was peculiarly fine and delicate, though the metal was soft and pure, apparently with no hardening alloy. The stones were beautiful and very strikingly and peculiarly arranged.

A number of amethyst beads of the richest and deepest purple, about a quarter of an inch in diameter, are in the possession of Mr. Edward Ayer of Chicago. He obtained them from Dashone, Egypt, they being from the treasures in the tomb of Princess Merit, daughter of Amenhotep II., of the Twelfth dynasty.

The Fibres of the Hawaiian Islands is a treatise by Leopold G. Blackman which has been issued by the Bernice P. Bishop Museum. It will prove useful to those who are interested in the local production of hemp, as it covers all the fibrous growths common to this soil.

Friedenthal will make a return visit to Honolulu on Feb. 6th.

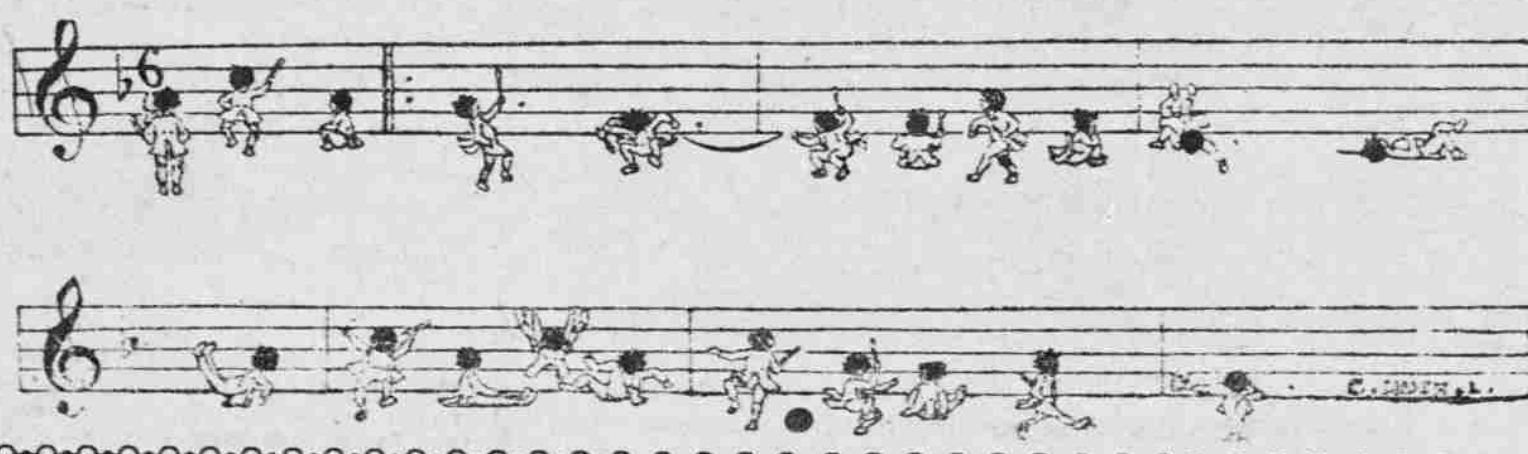

They had been discussing the baby's ears, eyes and nose. "And I think it's got its father's hair," said the joyful young mother. "Oh, is that who's got it? I noticed it was missing." And as the tall girl with the suave manner said this, the mother looked dubiously at her.—Judge.

Friedenthal, the famous pianist, will be in Honolulu on Feb. 5th.

THE BYSTANDER

down fire upon their heathen altar and confound the prophet who had warned the King against them. A wild man, called the Tishbite, no one knows why, had come to challenge a national religion. He would yield to a test of power with the Almighty and to that alone. If the priests of Baal could kindle their sacrifice by flame from above, he would yield to them; if not, and he could summon the celestial fire, would they yield to him? Baal knew not the sunless and could not light the altar; Elijah the Tishbite was deep in the secrets of the desert and when he wanted fire it came, confounding the priests and wringing a reluctant conversion from the King. But even then there was no soft life for Elijah. Threatened by the Queen he hid in a watercourse where "ravens," either birds or travellers, for both bore the same name, fed him of their dates and corn. And through all his life of prophecy—through all the years when the powers of Heaven and Hell, of Earth and Air seemed to be his to wield—he was a tramp of Israel, a ragged wayfarer of the desert, a shaggy, unclean, Bedouin with hair about his shoulders and the callous feet of the sheep-herder. And then, in due time, came the end of all.

Back comes the Tishbite to earth after centuries of death, remembering nothing of where he has been meanwhile. He is a little dumpy man now, with fair round belly with rich capon lined, and he comes from palaces of his own building, in the vaults of which lie more gold than even Croesus knew. Instead of an altar of fire and priests of Baal he sees the live charcoal of the grill and bending over it the skillful chefs who do his bidding; and at a table spread with silver and with glass and shining linen, he awaits their pleasure. Ravens do not bring him food; it is borne by better servitors and more highly paid than any Ahab had. Course after course comes and goes; the Lucullan banquet is prolonged two hours; and when the bill is paid more money passes than the herdsman of Gibeon ever saw. Nor does the little man summon any of our modern Kings to repent and cease the worship of their false gods. Far from it. He is one with them in love of creature comforts and respect for Mammon and his sole command is "Come unto me and give me all you have!" And when he gets it he goes travelling with a secretary, a press agent, a personal attendant and a companion and spends money almost as recklessly as his old enemy Ahab did when he left his ivory palace and went out to see the vineyards and get a whirl of the town.

What will Elijah be in his next incarnation? If he changes as much as he has done in the last few thousand years he may become the worm that dieth not.

That suit of Hugh Craig's against Dowie has its comic aspect to everybody but Craig. When Dowie first came to San Francisco, sixteen years ago, he brought a letter to Mr. Craig, from an old friend of the insurance man's, and on the strength of it borrowed money. This sum, a quite large one, the prophet only repaid in part. On Dowie's return to San Francisco Mr. Craig asked for the remainder and got nothing but a chill. Then he threatened to sue. "Sue the Lord, then," was Dowie's calm reply, "you lent it to Him through me."

It is not generally known that Honolulu has several "whiskered" newsboys. It's a fact, and though they have whiskers the tallest of the group is not more than four feet four inches and his years reach no further than 10. There is a family of Portuguese children, four in all, who sell papers every day. Each one has a well developed set of "side-burns" reaching from the temples to the lower end of the jaw bone. Otherwise the face is free from hirsute adornment. The boys are a source of amusement to their fellow "newsies" and strangers take a second look at them.
